Phase two is expected to be completed in December, with 3 to 4 stories of mixed-use development. The second phase will be built behind the existing building at 33 E. Grand Traverse St. The first phase has 35 apartments on four stories, and was completed and sold in December 2017. "This is a huge milestone in the growth of Lansing Craftsmen Village," said Roger Grace, CEO of the RTCEDC in a news release. "With this second phase of Lansing Craftsmen Village, we are adding more than 200 more workforce housing units for our community. Traverse City needs more workforce housing, and we have proven what can be done with our unique property in downtown Traverse City." Resident Andrew Rivera, said, "I really like the apartment complex and it's also nice to have a new complex in downtown. It's definitely better, in my opinion, than the one that was there before." The RTCEDC is the non-profit organization charged with developing, marketing and implementing the vision for the city's revitalization. It receives funding from the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, and was established on March 2, 2011, with the intention of drawing residents to the downtown area to increase property values, boost the local economy, and create a more vibrant environment. Traverse City has been a focus of the RTCEDC in recent years, as the Detroit market has shown difficulties with affordable housing, and the economy has slowed. 3e33713323
