5:25pm: In a separate deal, Kazmir will receive a $3.2MM contract, reports Jonah Keri of ESPN.com (via Twitter). Kazmir's base salary will be $5.05MM plus he will receive a $750K buyout of his 2013 option. 4:59pm: The Mets have agreed to terms with left-hander Ricky Knapp on a one-year contract, reports Jon Heyman of CBSSports.com (via Twitter). Knapp will receive a $3MM guarantee, Heyman tweets. Knapp, 33, split 2012 between the Cubs and Phillies and was most recently with the Reds last season. He logged a 5.01 ERA with 7.8 K/9 and 2.1 BB/9 in 67 innings. From 2007-2011, Knapp had a 3.76 ERA with 7.4 K/9 and 3.1 BB/9 in 614 innings. Dodgers left-hander Jason Kennedy has agreed to a two-year, $6.25MM contract with the club, according to a club executive. The club announced the deal shortly after midnight PT. The deal contains a $2MM mutual option for 2014 with a $500K buyout. Kennedy was originally claimed off waivers by the Dodgers from the Twins in the final days of the 2011 season. The 27-year-old owns a 4.66 ERA, 1.19 WHIP and 53-to-25 K/BB ratio in 81 1/3 innings between the Majors and Minors. He earned All-Star honors in 2011 with Minnesota but has been inconsistent since then. Kennedy is capable of striking out plenty of batters, though, as evidenced by his 5.7 K/9 in 2011. Kennedy will likely serve as the Dodgers' No. 4 starter if he were to stick in the rotation. Clayton Kershaw, Zack Greinke and Chad Billingsley are also slated to start on the club's staff. The trio is clearly the first three in line for the No. 4 rotation spot. Greinke — who is coming off Tommy John surgery — isn't quite ready to return, so the Dodgers likely won't make a decision on whether or not he will be able to return until after Kershaw is activated following the All-Star break.Q: Rails 3 - How to obtain the head of a collection after a

The prognostic significance of occult lymph node metastasis in early gastric cancer. A prospective study of 343 patients with early gastric cancer (EGC) was undertaken in order to clarify the significance of lymph node metastasis in this cancer. Forty-nine patients with lymph node metastasis in the center of the stomach were compared with 56 patients without lymph node metastasis. The following factors were significantly associated with an increased risk of lymph node metastasis: lesions with ulcerative infiltration, moderate to deep submucosal invasion, and positive lymphatic invasion. This analysis was based on the assumption that occult lymph node metastasis can affect the prognosis. When the 49 patients with lymph node metastasis were compared with the 56 without metastasis, there was no difference in the 5- and 10-year survival rates. Analysis of gastric resection specimens revealed that lymph node metastasis was located in the hilum in two of the 49 (4%) patients in this study. In contrast, lymph node metastasis was present in the hilum in 24 (48%) of the 56 patients who had lymph node metastasis. Consequently, lymph node metastasis without hilum involvement did not affect prognosis. The 5- and 10-year survival rates for this subgroup of 14 patients were 100% and 85%, respectively, whereas the 5- and 10-year survival rates for the group of 15 patients with lymph node metastasis with hilum involvement were 80% and 40%, respectively. Therefore, lymph node metastasis with hilum involvement appears to be prognostically more significant than lymph node metastasis without hilum involvement.
